

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

So far as we can ascertain this is the first attempt towards making a complete catalogue of the plants of Indiana, and this limits itself to the enumeration of Phanerogams and Vascular Cryptogams. The vast body of cryptogamous plants belonging to the State cannot be included, for they have not even been collected. The materials for this list have been accumulating for some time, at first under the direction of the State geological survey, but latterly as the times and means of the authors permitted. It is thought that the time has come for publication, not because the list is absolutely complete, but because it is so nearly complete that only publication can provoke further additions. We take this opportunity of urging all who can to furnish additions or corrections, as it is the intention from time to time to publish such material in the form of extra sheets to the BOTANICAL GAZETTE. Already several additions have been made to the parts published and in all probability the first sheet of "additions and corrections" will be very shortly issued.

Three lists of the plants of Jefferson county have been published and one of Gibson and Posey counties, but we know of no published list of the plants of any other part of the State. For this reason references to these counties will be more copious than to any others. The range of each species is briefly indicated, the counties from which it has been reported being named or grouped together in some general expression, such as "north," "south," etc. This is by no means to be understood as complete, but simply to give authenticated stations. We hope that much information in regard to extension of range will be received. When there is occasion to believe that a species is distributed throughout the whole State no range is given.

Although it is hardly necessary to give the topographical features of a State that is so well known, a few statements may be made to make clearer some points in the distribution of plants. The whole State is a plain sloping gradually towards the west and south-west, making the lowest point in the south-western counties, lying between the Ohio and the mouth of the Wabash. These counties have an elevation above the sea of only 300 feet, while to the north and east the land rises to the height of 900 feet. The highest point of land is known as Weed Patch Hill, in Brown county, being 1147 feet above the sea. The northern part of the State is drained into Lake Michigan and is very level, the extreme north-western counties being but a part of the old lake basin. This makes them very sandy and there among a stunted and scanty growth of trees are to be found many plants peculiar to "barrens." A similar condition of things holds to a certain extent among the "knobs" of the southern part of the State. This peculiar range of hills, averaging a mile or more in width and 500 feet in height, begins on the Ohio river in Floyd county and trends north-west to the line between Washington and Clark, at that point turning to the east and then to the north, forming the boundary line between Washington on the west and Clark and Scott on the east. It was in this region that Dr. A. Clapp in the decade beginning with 1835, did much of his botanical work, and to his valuable collection this present catalogue is indebted for much material. The prairies are found in the western and northern counties and their characteristic plants can be readily recognized in the following list. These plants, however, are disappearing more rapidly than any others, for the rich prairie lands are now almost all under cultivation and the native flora, driven to the fence rows and railroads, leads but a precarious existence. Plants peculiar to rocky gorges or sterile soil are in much less danger of extermination. The splendid forests which originally covered the greater part of the State are rapidly disappearing, and in their place is springing up a new race of plants. Our characteristic forest trees are the poplar (Liriodendron), maple, ash, elm, black and white walnuts, oak, hickory, beech, sycamore. Some of these grow to very great size and many are the traditions of monster trees that once grew in various parts of the State. Along our rivers and railroads new species are continually appearing and such interlopers should be carefully watched and reported.

It will be seen that the flora of the State is readily divided into four groups, each marked by the physical aspect of the region in which it is found. These regions may be called "the river valleys," "the lake borders," "the prairies" and "the barrens." An examination of the stations given will enable the reader to easily recognize the characteristic plants of these very distinct regions.

As recorded at present our flora numbers 1432 species grouped under 577 genera. This represents only those plants whose occurrence can be authenticated by specimens. Some species were omitted of whose presence within our limits we were reasonably certain, but it was the endeavor to strictly adhere to the idea that it is much easier and more honorable to add to a list than to subtract from it.

It remains to say a word in regard to our very useful friends. For the south-western counties we depended upon Dr. J. Schneck, of Mt. Carmel, Ill., who is in a most favored botanical region and who has already published in a State report a list of the plants of his own and neighboring counties. Some additions and corrections for this same region have been furnished by Mr. Robert Ridgway of the Smithsonian Institution, and will shortly appear. Rev. E. J. Hill, of Englewood, Ill., has contributed many species for the north-western counties and his kindness in furnishing a large list of plants has gone far towards making our catalogue complete. In Laporte Mr. W. C. Steele has been of much service. Mr. W. R. Dudley, of Ithaca, N. Y., has very materially aided us in Monroe county, several species being reported only by him. Mr. Ansil Moffatt, of Indianapolis, has done good work in Marion county as will appear by looking over the stations. Jefferson county has been most thoroughly "worked up" by the authors and Prof. A. H. Young, of Hanover. They have also explored much of Clark in connection with Prof. John F. Baird, of that county, and also Scott, Floyd and Washington. Two of the authors did a good season's work in Jasper, Laporte, St. Joseph, Elkhart and Noble. Explorations for several seasons have been made in Parke, Montgomery, Tippecanoe, Carroll and Cass and for one summer in Allen, Wabash, Huntington, Miami, White, Pulaski, Starke and Newton. By examining the map it will be seen that this work has been well distributed and this fact gives us considerable confidence that the present catalogue represents at least fairly the flora of the State.

It is to be hoped that additions to our list will be promptly reported that they may be put on permanent record at the earliest possible date.

CORRECTIONS.

- Page 1. Ranunculus alismæfolius should read R. ambigens Watson,
 32. Juncus scirpoides, var. macrostemon, should be credited to Lake instead of "Laporte."
 33. Hemicarpha subsquarrosa is correctly credited to Laporte but the var. Drummondii should be credited to Lake.
